Your feedback about this software About This Software Celiveo Print-Direct is a tool designed for the office environment and that enables your staff to save up quite a lot of money on printing costs. The program relies on a new technology dubbed ZeroServer which enables network administrators to replace the printing-related servers in a company with an intelligent architecture that can be accessed at every node. The application can enhance the communication security in the environment The idea behind the utility is to completely remove the central server responsible for printing jobs as well as the application associated with it and that enable users to manage the tasks. Considering that there are no master or slave servers, it means that the potential bottlenecks and the central points of failure generated from using the same setup for dozens or hundreds of machines are also removed. In addition to limiting the errors across the network, the tool can ensure secure print jobs. According to the developer, you can configure a system that comprises of strong user authentication, encrypted pull printing and implements various print rules across the staff. As a consequence, you can make sure that only authorized users can access the printers and MFPs. At the same time, you can eliminate the risk that the print job is hacked, from both inside and outside the premises. Limiting the access to personal data and company document from inside the premises can also entail a step further in complying with the GDPR regulation. Comes with wide compatibility and works with numerous printer brands More often than not, manufacturers released various software solutions for a given range of printers which may not always be compatible with other devices. The good news is that the app comes with extensive compatibility so you can migrate without worrying about the extra costs associated with the software licenses.
