Johnson has announced a final Brexit deal will be on the table at an EU council meeting of EU leaders on Thursday. The deal will be agreed by the two sides and the prime minister said MPs should give it a “mandate of confidence”. Speaking in the Commons, the prime minister said: “Let me be clear. This deal does represent an agreement between the UK and the EU. It is the best deal available. It is the only deal available.” Brexit: the EU27 set out a package of demands for the prime minister Read more “And it must be a deal in which we are all happy if we are to succeed,” he added. “That is not some sort of plot or ruse to confuse you, but the honest way of saying that this deal is by far and away the best that can be negotiated and it is a deal that is in the national

Dematteis-Sempe, who was elected mayor of the Belgian capital's 10th district in 2015, wants to turn the historic building into a cultural center. The building's 127-year-old hotel and restaurant on the Petit Sablon square were partly destroyed during World War Two. The occupants at the time were forced to flee the city hall in the wake of Germany's army storming the city in 1944. A fact sheet on the mayor's website describes the 0cc13bf012
